Leftover vegetables can be combined and served as a scalloped food or they can be used in soups.

The dancing program was furnished by Grimm's Imperial orchestra and included circle one steps and other dances. Punctuated by about 11 o'clock Tony Snyder presided as chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements.

Lipstick Is to Match Occasion, Mood and Dress

LONDON — (INS) — Varying shades of lipstick to match not only complexion and dress, but mood and occasion, are Mayfair's latest idea in feminine make-up.

Bond street salons are now showing neat lacquered cases containing an assortment of six lipsticks.

One, called "Chariot," is a brilliant scarlet. It is to be worn for a gay mood, and with a scarlet frock.

"Printemps" is more delicate, and it is to be used for evening wear with pastel-colored frocks.

A sinister black case contains "Victoire," a seductive, deep red, which looks best with a black dress.

When the lady wishes to look dashing, she applies the flaming "Coquette."

"Viola," for a wistful mood, should be worn with blue dresses. There is a hint of violet in the lipstick which makes the skin look white and the eyes shadowy.

The last, "Naturelle," is intended to disguise the fact that the wearer is using make-up. It is to be used for sports and country wear.

Scientist Keeps Healthy Through Work and Riding

PARIS — (INS) — Madame Curie, world-famous scientist and discoverer of radium, has just celebrated her sixtieth birthday. Although of slightly delicate health, she still shows signs of remarkable energy and resistance.

In order to retain her strength, she has lately taken to regular physical exercises which she practices faithfully. Three years ago, the doctor advised her to ride horseback, and to this habit she believes she owes much of her health today.

Madame Curie lives in one of the lovely old houses on the Ile St. Louis in studios, retaining, considering herself to her work and very few intimate friends. She has only one servant.

Every morning finds her bright and early at the laboratory in the rue Pierre Curie, with her collaborator and helper, her elder daughter and Dr. Regnaud, with whom she is pursuing deep research work on the medical use of radium.

YOUTHFUL DRIVERS WORST
CHICAGO — (INS) — With youth at the wheel of the modern automobile danger lurks according to the results of a survey by the National Association of Automobile Mutual Insurance companies. The survey showed that there are 156,000 drivers under the age of 20 in this country and psychologists declare that many of these are incompetent. The drivers under 20 years of age are responsible for 15.6 per cent of all automobile accidents, the survey revealed, while those between 17 and 25 cause 16 per cent. Only 7.6 per cent of all accidents are caused by drivers between 45 and 55 years of age.

"CUTEST GOB" ARRESTED
HONOLULU — (INS) — The United States Navy, and particularly the snappy white uniform that drapes a regular gob, has a strong attraction for pretty Margie Zimbrick, 20. She liked the garb so well that she bought a complete outfit and swanned around at dances at Wai-kiki. Police arrested Margie and upon her pleading guilty to wearing the uniform of a naval enlisted man contrary to law, Honolulu's "cutest gob" was placed on sixty days' probation.

You know what a Christmas Box is? CHAPTER XI
"ESCAPED"

There came to Joe the overpowering realization of this omnipotent thing known to him as the police. He had been free only a short time, but the news of it was already established and old—old enough for one of its carriers to be crumpled, discarded, even by barber shop loungers. Every one must know him now; he clicked his teeth with rapidly tightening jaws. His barber had pressed against him, in a survey of the photograph.

"Them guys are certainly getting free with their hardware," he said. "First thing we know, they'll steal the city hall. Tough baby, ain't he?"

Then the barber moved on, leaving Joe Barry still staring at his own photograph. Must the man be blind that he could not have seen the resemblance? At last Joe Barry glanced into the mirror.

The person he saw was not the man who placed him in a five-dollar bill. He received change without counting it. There was too much relief now to think of money, precious though it might be. He was away from New York and only that it be away from New York.

When the end of the line arrived, Joe Barry stepped forth and looked about him with more of confidence. He was away from New York and its canyons of buttressed fear; here he could plan with something of calm. Early that afternoon he walked slowly past a bank in a small Pennsylvania town and looked within.

This was to be his trial. Certainly bankers would watch the newspapers, and be alert for the sight of a criminal. Immediately, Joe fought against the word; he was not a criminal, he told himself. But he laughed mirthlessly; it was a grimace and an expulsion of breath, little more. He was adjudged a criminal, and he was being hunted as a criminal; a murderer, if that made it any clearer, and what difference did it make if in his own mind, he knew himself to be innocent?

That was bad reasoning. It made him shaky. Then suddenly he whirled, walking swiftly, and turned in at the door of the bank.

"Good afternoon," he said, and waited.

"Oh, hello," he said, and smiled. "Back to make that other deposit?" Joe Barry cleared his throat.

"No—I'm sorry. I've got to draw out some money."

"Certainly, certainly." Then the banker passed over a saving account withdrawal slip and made a remark about that most casual of things, the weather. After a time, Joe picked up the pen. His hand had stopped shaking.

Then, almost before he realized it, he was out of the bank. Free, and money in his pocket. He had drawn only half of his deposit but it was enough. There would be no need to take the risk of going to the other bank; all custodians of money might not be alike.

He had money in his pocket—two hundred dollars. He could buy a ticket all the way across the continent with that and still have something to live on after he had made the journey. His brain was filled with the thought, of the clatter of trains, the rush and roar of miles slipping away beneath him, strange cities where one could lose oneself, ships at anchor, looking for eager, hardworking young men. More and more glorious became the thought of the far away. Then it all was gone.

For Joe Barry realized that he was standing still, half turned from the chipped sidewalk which led to the blackened railroad station. Before him was a wooden fence, and upon that fence, the rain-washed, tattered posters of a departed circus.

Two days later, Joe Barry stood on the curb of a downtown business block in the quiet old town of Frederick, Md., his own troubles for the moment forgotten. From far down the street, there came the faint murmur of a drum, rising through the steady overtones of the bass drum. With this the crowded sidewalks forgot other things in an undulating bulge toward the curb, like the sweep of a wave.

The music of the band became louder. Joe Barry edged forward. He had come here only for mental travail. In a few minutes now, the "grand, glittering and glorious pageant" of the Dayton Brothers circus would pass him, and he would have a little of it, save one person. And when that view had been gained, that one bit of worship silently and surreptitiously given, Joe Barry would go on—to far places, to shabby Pennsylvania town and look-into a window.

Now, he knew, there could be no release. His job was a job of a life or death; either it clung to him like a hated scourge, to haunt him throughout the years, or it would send him to a distant land, screaming and beat their rough shoes against the floor late at night when one of their number, his head shaved and his trousers legs slit to make way for the touch of clammy electrodes, went through a little door, never to come back. Joe Barry had been forced in the last few, year-like days, to face this situation with something of dull resignation; there was nothing else to do. But the complications of his heart had not, in the turmoil, been reckoned with.

The poster had brought them in to sharp relief. Lonely, harassed, hungry for some one who would be kind to him, he had stood before those tattered circus bills like a reverent person before an altar. If he could only see her and hear her voice; if he could once more stand beside her, watching the slanting sun string its films of gold through her soft hair, to have her talk to him, the tones of her as soft as a caress! The protective side of him had cried out against the thought, while the heart of him throbbed and pounded for her and demanded her. This one thing above all the world. So, at last, there had been a compromise.

Jackets Short; Necklines High And Changeable

By ALICE LANGELLER

PARIS — (INS) — Old-fashioned comfort is very evident in the new-old fashions that are making every smart woman very romantic this season.

Jackets are shorter than they have been for many a day but they are also practical. The high necks may be speedily turned into low ones, trills and bustles are not allowed to impede the wearer and large awkward bows have disappeared.

High necks are extremely smart and cozy on both coats and frocks. Coats often button up on one shoulder and down on the side so that the ease of the collar is not broken. Worth is showing one with a double row of silver buttons down the front and the high neckline ends in a scarf.

Scarves, fur capelets and muffs are in the center of the fashion picture now that chill weather has come back. Each fashion house has its own ideas on the subject. One of them uses fur-edged scarves of cloth or tweed with pale muffs to match and big separate cape collars of astrakhan and sealskin with accompanying muff.

A False and Cowardly Newspaper Attack

A recent issue of the Wilton Junction Advocate contains a whole column tirade against Mr. Baker which for downright venom, cowardice and insincerity has seldom been surpassed. After taking Mr. Baker to task for an occasional good word he has said about the great transformation going on in Russia, the Advocate closes its articles thus:

It is quite generally believed that emissaries of Russia have paid large sums of money to newspapers that are willing to stoop so low as to accept "gifts" from them and publish propaganda favorable to their murderous government.

The most cowardly, contemptible and vile person in the world is the person who tries to put over by insinuation what he dares not express openly for fear he will have to face and swallow his own lies or take the just punishment he merits.

The Wilton Junction Advocate wants to charge the Free Press with accepting soviet propaganda money, but is too cowardly to say anything that might lay it liable to the libel laws.

Our answer to this base and cowardly insinuation is that all the statements that we have made about Russia are provable facts, and have been made time and again by distinguished groups of United States Senators, including such men as Wheeler and Borah, a long list of reliable Congressmen; some of our most eminent bankers like Mr. Mitchell; many of our most prominent business men who have visited Russia; a large number of American engineers who have helped erect the great plants that are now covering Russia; eminent educators and philosophers like John Dewey, many ministers of recognized integrity, and writers like Theodore Dreiser, Bertrand Russell and Bernard Shaw.

These people have praised and spoken hopefully of many things they have seen in Russia and most of them have criticized the dictatorial character of Russia's revolutionary government and the limitation of free speech in Russia. But most of them have been open-minded enough and big enough to say that Russia is still in the stage of revolution and that all revolutionary governments are dictatorships.

We wonder if the Wilton Junction Advocate would dare to display such ignorance and all round assinnity as to charge that these distinguished Senators, Congressmen, bankers, business men, writers, educators, ministers and scientists are all liars, bought and paid for by the soviet government? Is the Wilton Junction Advocate ready to charge that any statement favoring any phase of present developments in Russia is prima-facie evidence that it is purchased soviet propaganda? That's exactly what its silly charge against Norman Baker amounts to. Norman Baker, like the distinguished company we have described, does not favor the present dictatorial character of the soviet government nor the present limitation of free speech in Russia, but like hundreds of distinguished, honest, reliable and intelligent persons who have visited Russia, he sees much to praise and speak hopefully of in the tremendous organized national effort that is literally transforming Russia into a modern nation in a few years.

If this viewpoint of Norman Baker is proof that he has taken money from the agents of soviet Russia, then it is proof that John Dewey, Rev. John Haynes Holmes, Senator Wheeler, Theodore Dreiser, Bertrand Russell, Bernard Shaw and hundreds of other eminent persons have been paid to lie in favor of soviet Russia.

On the other hand, let's examine the kind of propaganda the Wilton Junction Advocate put out about Russia in its article intimating that Norman Baker was a paid agent of Russia, a dishonest person and a traitor to his country. Let's see what kind of company the Wilton Junction Advocate is in. Let's see if its statements stand the test of truth.

The Advocate says religion is forbidden in Russia and the churches have been destroyed. The entire body of reliable literature about Russia says that the Greek Orthodox church which the Russian revolution defeated was one of the most inveterate enemies of liberty and progress the world has ever seen. The ruling elements in Russia today have the scientific instead of the religious mind and are trying to transform the world by science. Let's give them a chance. They have not destroyed the churches and religion is not forbidden.

The Advocate charges outrageous treatment of farmers and seizure of their lands. The truth is that when Russia attempted to pass to a cooperative basis of farming the well-to-do peasants, or kulaks, rebelled and were suppressed but that condition has passed and two-thirds of the land and 60 per cent of the peasant families are now in cooperatives. It is too early to judge this development, but in God's name, considering agricultural conditions in the United States, why traduce this experiment in vast agricultural cooperation?

The Advocate charges forced labor. This charge has been investigated time and again. With minor exceptions labor in Russia is not forced although Russia, far from having an unemployment problem such as we have, is 2,000,000 workers short in its great internal building program. Recently the soviet government threw itself almost entirely upon reward and inducement rather than upon force in order to recruit and hold the vast army of workers needed. Pay was placed on the basis of accomplishment or individual production. There has been a steady series of wage raises and to cap it all production has increased to such an extent that the cost of living—general prices—was lowered 30 per cent recently.

The Advocate says Russia has an army of 1,500,000. Russia has an army of 650,000. The Advocate describes certain conditions that existed formerly during the cruel stages of active revolution. They do not exist today. This harking back to conditions that are outgrown is a peculiarity of the anti-Russian propaganda. Russia has made remarkable progress since the days of the Czar and is changing very rapidly. It is undoubtedly liberalizing. Propaganda sheets like the Wilton Junction Advocate cover up these broad and undeniable truths.

The Advocate's statements do not stand the test of truth. They are one-sided, unfair and untrustworthy. Which is the most apt to be paid propaganda—Norman Baker's truthful statements about Russia or the Wilton Junction Advocate's lying statements about Russia? Is truth propaganda, or are mistatements propaganda in their very nature? Are newspapers paid for telling the truth, or are they paid for lying? Considering the fact that the Russian revolution seized and took over and made the property of the people the whole Russian system of private monopoly, and the success of the Russian revolution menaces the system of private monopoly in America, who do you think would be apt to be handing out bribes in America for propaganda, Russian agents or Wall Street agents? Where would Wall Street agents go with their money, to the Midwest Free Press, or to the Wilton Junction Advocate? Think it over.

The Evening Story

ALL FOR A DIME
By Elta Webb

Marcella Brink had gone to the store to buy a potato masher such as Kenneth's mother used. Being newly married, Marcella's house-keeping was still a great adventure. She intended to serve lamb chops and mashed potatoes for lunch. Ken always expected a hearty lunch. Going down the aisle of the store Marcella was attracted by a tray of jewelry. Earrings. She had always wanted a pair and those with the red stones looked dazzling under the electric lights. She invested a dime and then went on down the aisle to where the potato mashers were on sale. All the way home she chided herself for giving way to the impulse to buy the earrings when there were other things she needed. Money was not over plentiful with the young Brinks. Marcella sighed when she thought she had wasted a dime.

During lunch Marcella had been called to the telephone. It was Ken's sister, Conny, asking Marcella to fill in at a benefit she was giving that afternoon.

Marcella told Ken all about it. He was delighted. "But she is asking me only because she wants me to fill in. Oh, I accepted. I know you would be pleased." Ken was pleased. He went back to work in high good spirits. No matter how much a man loves his wife he likes his relatives to approve of him. Ken's relatives were all small ears, and they looked very nice swinging against her black hair. She had decided to wear them; she was looking pale and needed the brightening effect of the red stones.

Marcella was a bit late in arriving at Conny's house. The game was already in progress when she entered. She heard Betty Burns whisper to her partner, "What in the world has happened to Marcella Brink. She actually looks alive."

Ordinarily Marcella, who was not a good bridge player, would have been out of business so far as playing the game by Betty's remark, but somehow today instead of feeling crushed she was stimulated to do her very best. Her usual pale cheeks blazed with natural color. At the end of the afternoon it was found she had the highest score. She was given the prize, a jade and silver Chinese bracelet. Betty Burns shrugged her shoulders, but she had to acknowledge that Marcella had scored again. She had set her heart on winning that jade bracelet.

When Ken came home that night Marcella met him at the door. She was glowing with joy at having won the bracelet, along with a friendly look from Conny. The red-stone earrings were still in her ears. She began to tell him about her afternoon even before she kissed him in greeting. He stopped and stared at her.

"Say! Where on earth did you get those earrings?" he demanded. "Conny phoned."

"Oh, she did!" Marcella suddenly dropped. "I suppose she said I had no business to wear them when everybody else was loaded with the real thing. That's what I get for letting myself be a pinch-hitter just to please you—and your family!" tears filled her dark eyes.

"Now, how do you get that way?" Ken spoke sharply. "Conny said she was tickled to death with you. She said your game was a marvel. She even admitted she was glad you won that bracelet away from her. Well, I never thought Conny would say it from Betty Burns. She said she was perfectly amazed to see how your personality had suddenly developed."

Ken was grinning. "If one pair of earrings can win Conny like that, it's up to me to dig in and earn enough to buy you anything you want."

Marcella fingered the dangling red earrings almost lovingly. "Did Conny know that my earrings cost only ten cents?" she asked.

"She did, and she said you wore them so lovely."

"But why didn't she call me and tell me all that, Ken?" Marcella asked soberly.

"Well, she and Bob are coming over this evening. She says she's got a lot to say to you."

Not long after dinner that night Conny and her husband arrived at the Brink apartment. For the first time since her entrance into the Brink family Marcella felt that Conny was really friendly. Nothing was said about the afternoon's happenings, though Conny and Bob talked about everything else. Conny said she was planning a dinner party for the following week. She wanted Marcella and Ken to attend.

Ken was giving it particularly for you, Marcella. I want you to meet some of my friends." Conny was very gracious. But Marcella held back.

"Now, don't say you won't come," Marcella. Conny said. "I know you haven't behaved very nicely to me, but I know you will forgive me when I explain something to you. When Grandmother Brink died she gave me her ruby earrings to keep—until, well, until I could find the right sort of girl to wear them. Grandmother said the girl must be dark. Oh, Marcella, you don't know how badly I wanted to keep those earrings. If Ken had married Betty Burns—"

"But she is red-headed!" Marcella interrupted.

"And so am I!" Conny laughed. "But I could still have kept the earrings even if I could not have worn them. But, honestly, Marcella, I am glad to give them to you. They have been a reproach to me ever since you and Ken have been married. Now you know all. Can't we be friends?" There could be no doubt of Conny's sincerity.

"Why, of course we can," Marcella's eyes shined with a happy light. "Truly, Conny, I don't believe I was ever so happy before in all my life."

"Nor I either," Conny admitted. (Copyright 1931 by D. J. Walsh.)

DANNY MEADOW MOUSE GOES ADVENTURING

Oh, Danny goes adventuring, adventuring, adventuring!

Oh, Danny goes adventuring all on an autumn day.

Go for Fortune, pray be kind to him, Go for Fortune, pray be kind to him!

Now wouldn't you suppose that any one so small and timid as Danny Meadow Mouse and with so many hungry enemies?

Watching for him would be quite content to stay at home? We rather expect Peter Rabbit to do unexpected and foolish things because of his dreadful curiosity, but Peter is many times bigger than Danny Meadow Mouse, and then, too, he can get over the ground very fast in time of danger.

But Danny is such a little fellow and his legs are so short that his only safety is in keeping out of sight. So Danny is the last one we would expect to set out adventuring, especially when he is all the time finding adventures right at home. Why, if Danny should tell you how many times he has saved his life by the skin of his teeth, as the saying is, you would wonder that he has any nerves left.

But Danny accepts these narrow escapes very much as you and I do our daily food, as just part of daily experience.

After all, then, perhaps it is not so surprising that Danny is possessed of a great longing to see more of the Great World. He isn't so very different from the rest of us. He gets hungry and sleepy just as you and I do. He enjoys his food and his sleep just as you and I do. He works and he plays just as you and I do. He has his pains and he knows what fear is, and what it is to be happy just as you and I do. So why shouldn't the spirit of adventure get into little Danny Meadow Mouse and make him want to see more of the Great World, just as you and I do?

You see after all Danny has "feeling," just the same kind of feelings that you and I have, if he is only a little Meadow Mouse.

Danny and Nanny, his timid little wife, had had a very happy fall. They are thrifty little people and great believers in preparedness. They are not at all like happy-go-lucky Peter Rabbit, and they had cut private little paths, ever so many of them, through the grass to the places where food was most plentiful. They had built a snug warren in the hollow of an old fallen fence-post quite hidden in a tangle of long grass. There had been plenty to eat and they had grown fat with good living and knew just where they could find plenty of food through the long winter. Decidedly it was very foolish of Danny to be discontented. Nanny told him so.

"I'm not discontented," declared Danny. "But the Great World is a very big place, I am told, and I want to see a little more of it. We've got as nice a little home as any one could ask for, but I can't see any reason that we shouldn't have a better one, is it? Not that I expect to find a better place to live. I don't. But it would be a lot of satisfaction to know that there isn't a better place. It is a very nice feeling to know that you have the best there is, but this is something you can't know if you never see anything else. Now, Nanny, I guess I am old enough and have had experience enough to take care of myself. I just can't be perfectly happy until I have seen something more of the Great World. You want me to be perfectly happy, don't you?"

Now what could Nanny say to that? Of course she wanted Danny to be perfectly happy. So like the wise little wife that she is she didn't say another word against Danny's going. She just hoped with all her might that at the last minute Danny would change his mind and decide to stay at home. But Danny didn't. No, sir, Danny didn't change his mind. Perhaps there was something in the air that made him restless and uneasy. Perhaps without knowing it he had a little of that feeling which had sent so many of that summer neighbors hurrying away to the far away sunny Southland. Anyway he wanted to go adventuring. And so one moonlight night he brushed his coat, bade Nanny good-by, told her not to worry, and started forth to see the Great World.

People's Pulpit

Editor Midwest Free Press, Muscatine, Ia.

In an article on the farmer and the farm I read recently the writer refers to the farmers as the "mud sills" of society—the foundation of our so-called "civilization," etc.

Now who wants to be a foundation? Yes, we know there must be a foundation, but why pick on the farmer? I'll tell you why! The farmer is the only one of the classes that goes to make up society that will act in that capacity and do so without greed or fair reimbursement. He is the only one who makes no demands. Other craftsmen (I say other craftsmen for the farmer is a craftsman, believe me) make demands for their product, which is their time, muscle, and skill they may possess. This applies to even the man with the pick and shovel. They don't say, "What will you give me for my product?" They say, "Give me so much or you don't get it." They refuse to sell and we all know that they get it. Not so with the farmer. He says, "What will you give me and accept what I give you?" He says, "I'll give you my product, which is my time, muscle, and skill, and I'll take what you give me."

Now will someone tell me how the farmer is going to get anywhere? Get some place in the sun that way? You know that when the mud sills are raised even up to one elbow and faintly asks for a decent price for his product, the whole distributing class, the professional politicians and the more or less subsidized press, rare up like a colt with a cockle burr under his tail and yell "prices fixing!" Radical Bolsheviki etc. we know that, but let 'em yell, they did that when other labor organizations were forming, organizations that function as such, but you will note that they had calmed down and only have a fit when the "great basic industry" farming, wants a place at the table. The farmer does not thumb his nose at them like the bricklayers, the railroad employees, the plasterers and so on down the line did. He goes to the bank, renews his notes, crawls back in the mud and resumes the job of "foundation." He grumbles a little (an undertone) something about not seeing why he can't have a place up in the sun. The "upper-stories" put him on the back and tell him he is just a peach of a "foundation" and they couldn't get along without him, (which goes right over his head like a Babe Ruth hit) and he settles a little deeper under the weight of the structure he supports, as satisfied as the cat on the Street-Sweepers' Union? Is it not a fact, that, several, if not all of them, were organized to combat the so-called "Middleman Menace" and is it not true that they employ the same "Middlemen" to conduct their affairs?

Again I ask—how are we going to get anywhere that way?

"SELECTING NUTRITION"

Our last article gave the classification of foods in six groups according to their effects on the body. The groups may be arranged as follows for convenience of reference:

- No. 1. Nerve.
- No. 2. Muscle.
- No. 3. Semi-Muscle.
- No. 4. Stimulative.
- No. 5. Solvent.
- No. 6. Laxative.

Number one and number six should always be used regardless of what else is selected.

It is well to state in the beginning that we are going to clean house, and repair, and rebuild and not try to cure any specific disease. When you have a dirty dish and you clean it, it is clean, regardless of what was in it. And so with the human body, when you make your selections of food from these groups you are going to clean the body and when the body is clean it doesn't matter whether you have the flu, high blood pressure, or mucus colitis, it won't stay in a clean body.

This is getting down to the true fact without any waste. When the body is congested with waste of any foreign nature it becomes sluggish in every way. No machine can run when it is clogged up.

Since it is a well known fact today that congestion is closely related to illness, it is in fact a close forerunner of disease, the logical procedure should be to determine the cause of this congestion.

Through careful and thorough tests it has been shown that an excess of starchy foods causes congestion to a great extent. Groups No. 2 and 3 represent the starchy foods and if anyone will take the time to observe a few people eating, anywhere, they will notice that the average meal consists of too much starchy food.

Bread, pie-crust, cake, biscuits, crackers, thickened gravies with flour oatmeal, white polished rice, macaroni and cheese; any of these foods when combined forms a sticky adhesive mass. While a certain amount of this starchy food is necessary to feed the muscles and help retain the nutrition of the is taken in excess of the daily muscular activity of the body it is liable to sour and ferment. You know how dough sticks to your wife's hands, and you know what a lump it forms when it dries a little, and begins to acquire a growth of fuzzy whiskers. It does not require much imagination to form an idea how this condition could clog the organs and tubes in the warm human body.

A meal composed chiefly of starches will do it, along through the digestive tract, becoming sticky, then dries as the heat of the body evaporates the moisture. By the time it reaches the lower end of the small intestine, and the coagulation has become more or less dry and hard, causing more or less friction, straining, heat and inflammation. These lumps remain in the folds of the intestines for days, weeks, and in some cases for months, forming a dumping ground for the collection of more waste which sours and breeds germs and inflammation.

The above condition will be found in nearly every body today due to the eating of excess starch and dehydrated foods.

In the first place this type of food must be practically left alone for a short time, or a very limited amount of group No. 3 used. Next the accumulations must be loosened and dislodged by a liberal use of the solvents.

Group No. 5. While doing this build up the person's energy by a liberal use of group No. 1. I do not combine this with plenty of group No. 6, to secure elimination as soon as the congestion has been dislodged and the eliminative organs have been strengthened by group No. 1.

Some people can use tomatoes for a solvent when a more tart juice like grapefruit or lemon may be too active. Each one must select from the different groups those articles which agree with them the best. A person who has a very serious catarrhal condition to dissolve sticky masses must use much or two quarts of grapefruit juice a day for the first two weeks then drop down to a pint for a while. Some solvent is needed daily.

BIG LEAGUE TRADING WAITS FOR NEW PIRATE PILOT

NEW RECORD FOR LINEUP CHANGES IS IN PROSPECT

Some of Best Known Stars in Baseball Being Involved

If half of the deals already discussed are made by big league baseball magnates the off season, between the 1931 and 1932 championship races, will just about set a record in lineup changes.

Most of the trades being talked about involve stars of the games, men figured as regulars and stand-bys.

Just now the lull before the storm probably is caused by Barney Dreyfuss' delay in naming the 1932 manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Barney has promised action within a week or two, in time for all hands to get busy and lay their cards on the table.

The reason the trading season is awaiting the managerial appointment at Pittsburgh is because Dreyfuss is said to be figuring on one of the National league stars on another team—as playing manager.

Frisch Or Terry?

The names of Frank Frisch of the Cards and Bill Terry of the Giants have been mentioned often.

But to get either of these men means a trade. And this trade may be the real starter of a brisk National league swapping session.

All eight clubs in the National are willing to do some trading. If St. Louis lets Frisch go to Pittsburgh it is certain they will ask in return one of the Pirates stars. And if the Giants part with Terry a first baseman must be secured in the deal, somewhere. The Pirates haven't a high class first baseman to offer for Terry which may necessitate a three-cornered deal.

Three-cornered deals are rather common in baseball these days, and with all of the National league clubs willing to talk trade it shouldn't be hard to arrange something.

Cubs Anxious Too

The Cubs are anxious to trade. They will part with Hack Wilson, Pat Malone and Gabby Hartnett.

It is said they have their eyes on Phil Collins and Chuck Klein of the Phillies, Ed Brandt of the Braves, Jim Bottomley of the Cards, Red Lucas of Cincinnati, among others.

The Giants would trade Terry and Hogan, the dreadnought backstop. It is said the Giants would particularly like to have Phil Collins, Don Hurst and Spud Davis of the Phillies, or some of the Reds.

Under Max Carey the Brooklyn club undoubtedly will trade. Carey doesn't like the lineup. He might part with such men as Dazzy Vance, Adolfo Luque and even Lefty O'Doul, Glenn Wright and Fresco Thompson may also go.

Even the Cards will trade. It is doubtful if Jim Bottomley will stay and the same doubt is seen in the cases of Chick Hafey, Flint Rhem, Andy High, Ernie Ostrat and Tony Kauffman.

Less In American

Less trading is expected in the American, though you can never tell what will happen once the magnates start gathering in the winter time.

The Browns have something to trade in Ralph Kress, shortstop. Now that Levey has made good there is no good reason why he should be kept. He and the American agent don't like. Cleveland would like to have Kress, and it is said that Joe McCarthy, with a wealth of infielders already, would take him.

Cleveland has had lots of trouble getting the right man at short. Once the Indians had the first chance at Levey, the Marine, but were indifferent. How they regret that indifference now.

Kress Good Man

The Browns like Levey and are not so keen for Kress. The Red-head is a good man. He knocked in 111 runs last year with a .311 batting average.

The White Sox want to do a lot of trading or buying. They have money to spend, so Lou Comiskey, new president, says. There is over $300,000 in the treasury. He may spend some of it for minor league stars, or he may decide to buy a minor league club and start a real farm system.

With the Cards gathering even greater strength for 1932, and recalling the easy race the A's led last year, it behooves fourteen big league magnates to get busy if they want to tighten up the races in 1932 and get some admissions through the gates.

Baseball business was none too hot the past season in spots. Run-away races coupled with depression brought a letdown and next year may be worse unless lots of thrills can be provided.

Magnates Alarmed

The magnates are alarmed at the falling off in football crowds, a games supported by a wealthier class of fans than baseball.

Yet they tell an urge for economy. Any deals this winter for minor stars will be at prices under $50,000, they aver.

They're talking economy everywhere. Cuts in salaries, a reduced player limit of 21, instead of 25, and fewer coaches are items being urged.

So with economy on one hand and a need of better strength on the other the only way out is to trade and trade they will.

As soon as the last football is carried off the field by the victorious team's captain the big guns of baseball will cut loose. They like publicity with their deals.

Northwestern University breathes a sigh of relief with Al Capone in the jug. Al insisted on sitting with the Wildcat cousin brigade.

Pitt Star Putting Up Great Fight for All-American Berth

Big Jim MacMurdo, Pitt Panther tackle, is putting up a fight for an All-American berth in his senior year.

Big Jim did his stuff against some of the best tackles in the land when Pitt played Notre Dame. The Irish did little on their power attack but beat the Panthers by air. As a sophomore MacMurdo rated as one of the best tackles in the game. He and his friends thought he would make the grade sure in his junior year. But a shortage of ends at Pitt caused Coach Jock Sutherland to shift Big Jim over a notch and he didn't do so well in the strange surroundings. This year he went back to tackle, his natural position and both he and the Panthers are playing better football.

IRISH ELEVEN IS PICKED TO DEFEAT TROJAN GRIDDERS

Notre Dame Is Just a Bit Cocky Over Saturday Tilt

By JIMMY CORCORAN (INS) SPORTS WRITER

CHICAGO (INS) — Who's cocky now?

I imagine that this will be the war cry of the Trojans when they arrive here Friday morning to combat the Irish and Associated Nationalities of Notre Dame on the following Saturday.

One year ago when Notre Dame made its long trek to the west coast the cry of the Trojan was horse was something along this line: "We'll take Notre Dame surely this time."

And now let's look at the situation. Wouldn't you say that it is reversed just a little bit?

Notre Dame Aggressor

Instead of the Trojan being the aggressor it appears that the Irish are playing the role at this time.

Friends of Notre Dame say that there's hardly a chance that they will be taken down the line. And on the other hand, the Trojan is hardly saying a thing.

As far as we footballers here can figure it out this Trojan team is coming here with a mind to business. They don't intend to do a lot of football playing.

In other words, Southern California comes here without saying a word or predicting a thing. On the other hand, Notre Dame is doing all the talking.

Trojans Are Versatile

And, on second thought, why shouldn't El Trojan chat a bit on his own behalf. It is one of the finest teams that ever came from that faraway coast and positively more versatile than the clubs we saw here in 1927 and 1929.

Howard Jones won two backfielders that should be the equal of any we have seen in the middle west. They say that Orv Hohler is the equal of either Schwartz or Renner. Wouldn't you say this was saying something?

I happen to know that Mohler is a great back. But then he can't be so much better than Pinckert who is a great back. And the American last year and his work this year has at least merited the same recognition.

With Mohler, Pinckert and Musick doing the big act Saturday there isn't any reason why the Jones tribe shouldn't be able to function, providing, of course, that the Notre Dame forwards will allow them.

Here in the middlewest we hear that El Trojan is sending here the strongest forward wall that has ever come out of the western country.

If this front line is able to match what "Hunk" Anderson can produce in the way of forwards the contest should result in one of the finest skirmishes that we have seen.

CARNERA READY FOR LEVINSKY

Primo 3-1 Favorite to Win Tonight in Chicago Ring

CHICAGO (INS) — Two hundred and sixty pounds of human flesh, bearing the mellifluous label "Primo Carnera," will hoist themselves through the ropes at Chicago stadium tonight. Facing this prodigious poundage when the opening gong sounds will be a gentleman who graduated from fish to fisticuffs, King Levinsky by name.

The Italian Leviathan and the Chicago Ghetto idol are slated to maul each other for ten rounds, but here and there an expectant soul can be found who is brave enough to venture the prediction that Primo may bring his heavy hand down on King's pate and set him napping. Primo is a 3 to 1 favorite. He will outweigh his opponent by a mere 68 pounds.

As an added attraction Bat Battalino of Hartford, Conn., featherweight champion, will show

Boston University players refused to let the faculty turn the game over to them. They figured the coach was being paid for that.

CATHOLIC CAGE TEAMS ANXIOUS

Catholic Schools All Ready for Opening Tip-Off Friday

Anxious for the opening whistle way to start off the 1931-32 basketball season, St. Mary's and St. Matthias high school cage teams are going through daily workouts to prepare themselves for their battle at the St. Mary's hall Friday night.

The St. Matthias team has been working out the past few weeks at the Jefferson gym and have responded with leaps and bounds with each practice period. On the other hand their opponents have been given some strenuous drills under the tutelage of Coach Paul Kent and they too have responded nicely.

One of the largest crowds ever to pack the St. Mary's hall is expected to see the two teams do battle. A St. Mary's and St. Matthias game always finds much rivalry existing and there will be no exception Friday night.

Two preliminaries are on the program. The first will find two St. Mary's Boy Scout troops meeting at 6:30 and two girls volleyball teams meeting at 7:15. The big game will get under way at about 8 o'clock.

Coach Paul Kent definitely announced his starting lineup. It consists of Capt. Roby at center, Montgomery and Hauser at the forwards and Hoffman and Wyninger at the guards. Fry and Neff will be ready to jump in at the forwards with Gesell, a substitute center, and Bruggman and Madden substitute guards.

Kelly Burns will do the officiating with Art Hahnbaum taking care of the timekeeping and Wilbur Roby doing the scoring.

SCHAAF PICKED TO KEEP TITLE

New England Crown Is Stake in Go With Jack Dorval

BOSTON (INS) — The chaps who aren't happy unless they can wage a "little something" were offering odds of 5 to 3 today on Ernie SchAAF in his ten round battle at Boston Garden tonight with Jack Dorval.

Officially, the battle carries with it the New England heavyweight title, vacated by Jack Sharkey, American champion, and now held by SchAAF by virtue of his one-round knockout of Jimmy Maloney.

But actually it means a whole lot more, as the victor tonight will be the recipient of many flattering offers from promoters throughout the country.

Late Dope on Football Teams

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (INS) — Thirty-three gridgers of the University of Illinois will entrain tonight for Columbus, O., where they clash with Ohio State's football team Saturday. Coach Bob Zuppke sent his boys through their final hard workout yesterday.

EVANSTON, Ill. (INS) — Following a light practice session, Northwestern's conference championship football squad will leave tonight for Iowa City where the Purple meets Iowa Saturday. The Wildcats went through their first stiff practice session in several days yesterday.

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (INS) — The entire Purdue campus was "pepped up" today for the Boilermakers' battle with Indiana Saturday. A mammoth mass meeting is scheduled for tomorrow night.

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (INS) — Michigan's football team, facing the hardest test of the season in the Minnesota game, will rely largely on a passing attack Saturday, it was indicated today.

COLUMBUS, O. (INS) — Crummer, Hinchman and Gallus, who were battered in the Wisconsin and Navy encounters, were in uniform again today and probably will be used against Illinois.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (INS) — With Ken MacDougall out for the season, My Uhl will be used at quarterback in case Peter Somers is removed from the Minnesota lineup Saturday, it appeared today. The varsity has been drilled against the Michigan aerial formations.

CHICAGO (INS) — Coach A. A. Stagg directed his attention to offense today after having spent most of the week drilling the Chicago grid team on defense. Keith Parsons, regular center, who has been sick, is expected to play against Wisconsin.

MADISON, Wis. (INS) — Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite today cautioned his Wisconsin football squad to beware of over-confidence in meeting Chicago Saturday.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (INS) — Coach Hayes closed the practice field gates to all visitors today as he prepared to send his Indiana Hoosiers through another secret drill for Saturday's game against Purdue.

CAMBRIDGE (INS) — The team that Harvard will start against Yale will work out today in a final drill. The players are Nazro and Hagaman, ends; Hardy and Kopans, tackles; Gilmann and Myerson, guards; Hollowell, center; Wood, quarterback; Crickard and Schereshewsky, halfbacks, and White, fullback.

DEMPSEY BEATS TWO MORE FOES

Belanger and Roper Latest Victims of Former Champ

KANSAS CITY (INS) — Jack Dempsey is a sick man. He is suffering from severe attacks of lumbago which at times keeps him confined to his bed. He is in no condition to be in the ring.

Such was the explanation of friends of Dempsey today of his poor showing in recent exhibition bouts.

KANSAS CITY (INS) — Charley Belanger, Canadian heavyweight, and Jack Roper of Los Angeles, today nursed bruises inflicted by the gloved fist of Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion. In a charity benefit program Dempsey last night appeared against the two opponents in two-round exhibition matches. He scored knockdowns in each bout. In another feature of the program Earl Mastro, Chicago lightweight, felled Herbie Drexel of Gary, Ind., in the third round.

NEW YORK (INS) — Johnny Del Isola, the back converted into a linesman, will be at center on Saturday for Fordham when the Rams play Bucknell. Pepper, sophomore halfback, will replace Janis.

Iowa Unable to Drive Back Frosh Eleven In Scrimmage

IOWA CITY, Ia. (INS) — With the final home game but two days off, Coach Burch Ingwersen today planned to add the finishing touches to a special defense to stop the championship-bound Northwestern team Saturday. Just how successful a strenuous week of defensive work will be cannot be determined until the Iowa eleven has engaged the mighty Purple team.

Following a long offensive scrimmage in which his varsity ball-carriers were unable to gain through a heavy freshman line, Coach Ingwersen tested the Hawkeye defense against Wildcat plays as enacted by the yearling team. Hickman, Moffitt, and laws broke loose for several nice gains against the Rhinies, but failed to consistently drive back the scrappy Frosh team.

The Dad's day game Saturday will mark the renewal of a gridiron rivalry that dates back to 1897. Iowa has a record of eleven victories, five defeats, and one tie against Northwestern. Nine years ago, an undefeated Hawkeye eleven sought to win a conference title by downing the Purple in the final game of the regular schedule. Now the unbeaten Hawkeye-coached outfit hopes to wallop a punchless Iowa team and move on to a clear championship.

Tony Canzoneri to Get Return Match If Chocolate Wins

NEW YORK (INS) — Louis Guitierrez, manager of Kid Chocolate, junior lightweight champion, revealed today he had promised a return bout to Tony Canzoneri in Havana next January if Chocolate defeats the lightweight champion in their 15-round bout here tomorrow night. It was on this condition, he said, that Canzoneri signed for tomorrow's bout.

Canzoneri is a 2 to 1 favorite to retain his lightweight and junior welterweight crowns.

Meanwhile the garden is dicker for two bouts on Dec. 11—Ernie Schaaf, Boston heavyweight, vs. W. L. (Young) Stribling; and Billy Townsend, Vancouver, B. C. welterweight, vs. Billy Petrolle or Jimmy McLarnin.

BARRY WOOD WILL FINISH GRIDIRON CAREER SATURDAY

Harvard Star Nearest Thing to Fiction and Movie Hero

By BILL CORUM (INS) SPORTS WRITER

NEW YORK (INS) — W. Barry Wood, Jr., goes for Harvard on the gridiron for the last time this Saturday in the Colonnaded stadium across the Charles River.

W. Barry is one of those rare individuals shot with four-leaf clovers and hung with horseshoes.

At Harvard he seems to do everything but ring the chapel bell. He plays football, baseball, tennis, hockey and a few other assorted things, sports a Phi Beta Kappa key, is the head man of many a committee and more than holds up his end socially.

In short, he is no hero on the gridiron and wall-flower at the prom, as so often happens. He can shake his feet in patent leather, too.

This tall, handsome and blue-blooded youngster, who has chipped the numbers in the Crimson backfield for three years, is the nearest thing to a fiction and movie hero playing football in this country today. And did you know, incidentally, that they are now awarding letters to Hollywood actors after their second major football film?

This tall, handsome and blue-blooded youngster, who has chipped the numbers in the Crimson backfield for three years, is the nearest thing to a fiction and movie hero playing football in this country today. And did you know, incidentally, that they are now awarding letters to Hollywood actors after their second major football film?

There are various explanations of Wood's phenomenal success, but the best one likely is that he is a pretty smart hombre who never grows flurried no matter how bleak the outlook.

Even since he was a string-bean freshman this Wood has been a thorn in the side of the Yales, and will they (at New Haven) breathe a sigh of relief next spring when he is handed a sheepskin instead of the piskin!

Logical Opponents

"It was logical the teams should be matched," the commissioner declared, "and we believed the tournament idea would appeal to the public through its novelty."

The Stagg field test is certain to complicate records in the lower division of Big Ten standings, since it has been announced that the post-season tilts will count as any other in the championship race. Exactly how much percentage should be given an eleven winning one-half a game promises to be a question more knotty than how many angels can stand on a pin point.

At the present time, the dope is that Chicago will beat Iowa and Indiana will beat Illinois. This would bring about the second meeting of the season between Indiana and Chicago, with the Hoosiers favored to cop their second victory off the Stagg aggregation.

But, of course, anything might happen in a midsize football game, and the windup might possibly see the Hawkeyes emerging with full honors. Such a turn of event would give the tough-luck Iowans some badly needed encouragement.

SEEK CREDIT CORPORATION

Substitute Plan Is Urged by Railroads For Pooling Plan

By HARRY WARD

WASHINGTON—(INS)—Creation of a Railroad Credit corporation as a substitute for the pooling plan of the Interstate Commerce commission to obtain higher freight rates, was proposed to the commission today by the association of railway executives.

The petition asked for certain modifications of the commission's decision the 15 per cent rate increase, in order to make the plan workable from a practical standpoint.

The organization would be incorporated under Delaware laws. Its administrative office will be located here.

In its recent decision the commission granted certain increases in freight rates, estimated to aggregate between $100,000,000 and $125,000,000, providing the revenues derived therefrom are placed in a fund for the relief of railroads failing to earn their interest charges.

The railroads now ask that the amounts so distributed shall be regarded as loans and not gratuities, the loans needing the best available collateral but with the discretion to the corporation to relax this essential when the public interest requires. Under the proposed plan these loans are to be for a period not exceeding two years, but may be renewed for another two-year period.

Thomas Cochrane was in supreme command of the navies of three different nations. In the British Navy, he rose to the rank of flag captain, and then was dishonorably discharged. He became successively "admiral and commander-in-chief of the naval forces of Chile," (after rejecting a similar commission from Spain); "First admiral of Brazil"; and "First admiral of Greece." Returning to the British Navy, he rose to the rank of admiral, ("Rear admiral of the United Kingdom").

LEARN TO KNOW THE RIGHT WORD

By W. C. Nicholson

CONDEMNED

(Find the error in this article)
Mill once wrote, "The verb transpire formerly conveyed very expressively its correct meaning, viz., to become known through unnoticed channels—to exhale, as it were, into publicity through invisible pores, like a vapor or gas disengaging itself. But of late a practice has commenced in employing this word . . . as a mere synonym of to happen . . . as the vile specimen of bad English is already seen in the dispatches of noblemen and viceroys."

The foregoing condemnation of the use of transpire for happen is supported by the New Standard Dictionary which, in part, defines transpire as follows: "4. To come to pass; happen; an improper use." So I think we'll have to change "transpire" to happen in the second sentence of the Fall Test. This sentence read as follows: "One event after another was transpiring that afternoon." The subject is "event." Being in the singular number, this noun should have been followed by the singular verb "was." "After another" could not possibly join with "event" to make a plural subject, because it is purely a modifying phrase. The second sentence therefore, should have read as follows: "One event after another was happening that afternoon."

Yesterday's error: "... and it is customary with nouns of these sorts."

Correct: . . . and it is customary with nouns of this sort. Do not use a plural adjective with a singular noun.

MARYLAND BARS SEVEN TURF MEN

Action Is Outcome of Fixed Race at Pimlico

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Md.—(INS)—Nate Raymon, popularly known along New York's great "White Way" as "Nigger Nate," and six associates, who by an alleged illegal substitution created a sensation on Maryland race tracks, were through with the racing business today.

The Maryland State Racing commission ruled them and two horses, Akhnaton and Shem, off the turf after it proved that Akhnaton had been substituted for Shem in a race at Havre De Grace on Oct. 3. The license of Arthur Kennedy, jockey, also was revoked, although it was believed he had no actual part in the fraud.

Others banned from the turf were Leo Kammerman, New York, Patrick Christie, William Marino, J. Lebolt, Herman Brackenhauer, and Vladimir Sulick.

When Shem entered in the Havre De Grace race he was heavily backed. After leading all the way, he captured the race by four lengths, winning thousands of dollars for his backers.

Rumors that Akhnaton, a three-year-old colt, had run instead of Shem who had practically no form and had never started previously, started an immediate investigation. When Shem, Akhnaton and Ep were discovered at the Lake county fair grounds at Crown Point, Ind., recently, it was definitely established

Mayor Moves to Drive Beggars Out of Chicago

CHICAGO—(INS)—A campaign to drive beggars from Chicago's streets was launched today by Mayor Anton J. Cermak. He ordered the police to arrest all persons caught soliciting alms. A special beggar's court will be held each week. Those who come from out of the city will be given a night's lodging and warned to leave. Those who make their homes in Chicago will be placed in the care of the city's shelters.

THE THANKSGIVING TURKEY

DENVER—(INS)—Colorado will be well represented on the nation's Thanksgiving dinner table this year. Tentative figures gathered by the United States Department of Agriculture show that 98,300 of the year's production of 285,000 turkeys will be ready for market by the end of November. An additional 125,000 will be ready for the Christmas markets. Production in 1931 falls about five per cent below that of 1930, with prices 20 per cent lower.

STOMACH TROUBLES

Sufferers from Stomach Ulcers have not as a rule been advised of the seriousness of such ailments. If left to the usual treatments, they may become malignant and end in cancer of the stomach.

OUR RECORDS SHOW RESULTS
We have had cases where the patient was told to have an operation for the removal of ulcer. We strongly urge against operations for either stomach ulcers or stomach Cancer. DR. MAYO said, "Only nine per cent of Cancers of the Stomach," recovers from operations at his hands.

Our treatment consists of injections and internal medicines.

GALL BLADDER TROUBLES

Gall bladder diseases and conditions treated without the knife or operation.

WE TREAT WITHOUT OPERATIONS
Our record for two years has been to successfully treat gall bladder cases without operation. We have not had one case come to the hospital in which operation was found to be necessary.

With our successful treatment of this condition we are relieving patients and sending them home happy. Get in touch with us immediately.

CANADA TO GROW FRUNES
VANCOUVER, B. C. —(IN8)— The annual importation of prunes and dried plums into Canada is valued at over $1,000,000. As a result of experiments carried out in recent years at the Canadian Government Experimental Farm at Sidney, B. C., prunes of the best quality have been successfully grown and de-hydrated. This development promises to be of importance to fruit growers on Vancouver Island, and it may mean that British Columbia will find a ready market in Canada.

Hanley. Running on the republican ticket, Mr. Hanley, who for years was state assemblyman from the Perry district, was elected state senator in the face of a democratic landslide throughout the state of New York.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Hanley reside here at 110 East Second street.

Additional Sports IRISH SET FOR TROJAN BATTLE

Final Drill for Big Game Confined to Easy Scrimmage

SOUTH BEND, Ind., (INS)—An ominous silence pervaded the Notre Dame practice field today as Coach Hank Anderson's fighting Irish confined themselves to limbering up trots and other such gentle pastimes. The back-bending toll of preparation for Saturday's big game with Southern California was concluded yesterday afternoon with a stiff practice session. Going through scrimmages without tackling in order to avoid injuries, Hank sent the Irish through a series of new plays which he expects to administer upon the Trojans. He emphasized blocking, recollecting that this element of the game was one of the chief factors in Notre Dame's crushing victory over U. S. C. last year.

No new injuries were in evidence in the ranks of the Irish. There was still a possibility that Koken and Melnikovich, injured backfield men, may get into the game Saturday. But Bill Pierce, right guard, is definitely out of the lineup.

In the last scrimmage before the game Notre Dame's first team was composed of DeVore and Kosky at ends, Culver and Kurth, tackles; Hoffman and Harris, guards; Yarr, center; Schwartz, left half; Shagetski, right half; Banna, fullback and Jaskiwich, quarterback.

JINX IS STILL AFTER CAMPOLO

Giant South American
Is Financial Flop
Even as Winner

NEW YORK—(INS)—The jinx still pursuing Vittorio Campolo, the Italian Giant from the Argentine.

The long-legged South American heavyweight has garnered nothing but tough luck and criticisms since landing on these shores in 1926. Campolo made his first big mistake by tying up with Jack Fagazy, who was unable to put him to work.

Campolo was the second of the over-sized foreign heavyweights—Fitz, Vittorio's fellow countryman and idol being the first. When the promoters saw the advantage of playing up the big fellows, Campolo was given a chance against Phil Scott. Incidentally before the Scott bout, Vittorio showed a "bad" back pointed by "Phanting Phil."

The giant South American came back to earn a draw with tough Johnny Risko and signed for a "shot" at Jack Sharkey. The jinx, however, followed Vittorio. He was training quarters and several days before the bout was scheduled to take place it was called off—a sure financial failure.

Even in victory, Campolo has failed to impress the fans. At one of New York's smaller fight arenas recently he knocked out Ralph Piccuello in eight rounds. He was booed out of the hall by fans who were enraged because he failed to do it in the quick manner they had anticipated.

Fred Heerd Is Found Eligible Today for Grid Game Saturday

On a check-up of Fred Heerd's studies at the Muscatine high school, it was found that a mistake had been made in the marking of one of his studies and he will be eligible to play in the game against Burlington here Saturday afternoon. Principal P. G. Messenger announced this morning.

Heerd, together with Mel Horst and Capt. Ray Utley were declared ineligible Wednesday at the high school for the Burlington game but the check-up on all three of the boys grades revealed the mistake.

WHEAT AS AID TO JOBLESS
ROCHESTER, N. Y. (INS)—Headed by Horst H. Clapp, a committee has been appointed here to urge the federal farm board to divert surplus wheat to the relief of this city's needy. While proposing that the wheat be converted into bread and distributed free, Clapp described as "ridiculous" the situation of the nation having a wheat surplus while people in many sections are practically starving.

GRAIN FUTURES CLIMB HIGHER IN WHEAT PIT

Trade Is Moderate in Practically All
Exchanges

CHICAGO—(INS)—Substantial upturns were recorded in grain futures here today.

Wheat finished 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 up, recovery almost all the ground lost yesterday. Corn was 1 to 1 1/4 higher and oats 3/4 to 1 1/4 up. Rye finished 1 1/4 to 1 1/2 better.

Grain futures showed firmness during the forenoon. Trade was moderate in practically all the pits, with a scarcity of offerings an early feature.

Wheat opened 3/4 to 1/2 higher and later advanced with commission house buying on strength in foreign markets.

Liverpool was 3/4 to 1/2 higher in line with buying by the commission and less favorable corn news from the Argentine. Buenos Aires was 1/4 to 1/2 higher, while Winnipeg showed advances of 3/4 to 1/2.

Corn was 1/2 to 3/4 higher after opening 1/4 to 1/2 higher. The strong cash position and firmness in wheat were factors. Shipping demand is fairly good and country offerings to arrive moderate.

Oats and rye moved upward with the general list.

Estimated carlot receipts were: Wheat 76, corn 144 and oats 24.

DARROW FIGHTS TO SAVE LIFE OF BOY KILLER

Pleads With Governor To Commute Death Sentence

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — (INS) — Clarence Darrow, eminent Chicago attorney, and associated counsel, today had left the fate of Russell McWilliams, 17, slayer of William Sayles, a Rockford street car rickshaw driver, in the hands of the state pardon board and Gov. Louis L. Emmerson. Fighting for the life of the youthful killer, who is scheduled to die in Joliet penitentiary Dec. 11, the nationally famous criminal lawyer appeared before the board late yesterday afternoon and, basing his argument solely upon the youth of the defendant, asked for a commutation of the sentence to life imprisonment.

"The judge has said that if there had been any mitigating circumstances he would not have given the defendant the supreme penalty," Darrow said, reading from the statement of Judge Arthur E. Fisher.

"What about age, is there any more mitigating circumstance than age? The statute calls for a mitigating circumstance by its creation of juvenile courts."

"Which way are we going—forward or backward?" Darrow demanded.

Others who asked for commutation of sentence were B. J. Knight, defense lawyer who claimed that McWilliams was drunk at the time of the crime; Julia Lathrop, for nine years chief of the welfare department at Washington, D. C., and Jessie Blinford, an executive of the Juvenile Protective Association of Chicago and a member of Governor Emmerson's Child Welfare Commission.

Robert McWilliams, father of the condemned lad also spoke in behalf of his son.

State's Attorney William D. Knight vigorously opposed clemency, relating in detail the crime and previous crimes which he stated McWilliams had confessed committing. He claimed that McWilliams was a man in all but years and that as capital punishment is on the statute books, the Rockford youth should not escape the penalty thus provided.

"The remedy is around the corner at the State house," Knight said. "There is where capital punishment was enacted into law."

The widow of the murdered man was present at the hearing but did not speak.

All who spoke for McWilliams, deplored the precedent which the carrying out of the execution would set for the United States and Illinois. Never before in the United States, they claimed, was so youthful a defendant sentenced to death upon a plea of guilty.

There is no set date for the pardon board to make public its recommendation to the governor.

One of the men who applied for treatment was prematurely bald.

"I'm going to get married in six months, and I've got to have some hair," he told Dr. Bengston.

MURDER TRAIL LEADS TO IOWA

George Kubik Killers Trained to Carroll By Officers

CARROLL — Omaha detectives Wednesday night were following the trail of the slayers of George Kubik, liquor dealer, into Iowa.

A police detective was expected here to aid local authorities in an investigation of the wreck of a car here Saturday night, which may provide a clue to the slaying last Thursday of the Omaha bootlegger.

Went Into Ditch

The car, a 1924 touring model, went into the ditch four miles west of here and the two occupants disappeared after going to the Leo Goedert farm home, where they addressed each other as "Jack" and "Ray."

The car carried an Illinois license and was equipped with a short-wave police radio receiving set.

Asked for Physician

An attendant at a local filling station reported that two men stopped there late Saturday night, the driver requesting that a physician be summoned for his companion.

The physician who responded stated that the man was bruised but otherwise unharmed.

He was only about 5 feet, 2 inches tall, the physician said.

Kubik, before his death, is said to have described one of his assailants as very short. The car which drove into the station bore a Boone county license.

He said the expedition found excellent roads in many sections of Africa. The expedition took pictures of wild animal life, to be used in a talking picture.

BROADCASTING RATES CLAIMED AS BEING HIGH

Interstate Commerce Body Hears Case Against N. B. C.

Radio listeners who hear chain programs every time they tune in on their sets, are interested in the fact that the National Broadcasting company, whose chain programs are heard daily over stations WOC, Davenport, and WHO, Des Moines, is charged in a complaint filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission by the Sta-Shine Products Company, Inc., of Freeport, N. Y., with exacting reasonable and discriminatory rates for the "transmission of intelligence for hire in interstate commerce."

The case will be considered by the commission on Dec. 14, at New York City before Examiner Cheseldine.

This is the first time in the history of the commission that a complaint has been received involving rates charged by the radio stations for broadcasting records disclose. The commission records show that the National Broadcasting company has retained the firm of Cravath De Gersdorff Swaine and Wood of New York to defend its position in the proceeding.

Rates Are Exorbitant

The Sta-Shine company, which is engaged in the manufacture of furniture polish, alleged in its complaint filed before the commission on Sept. 19 of the current year that the rates charged by the defendant companies for "messages" sent via station WGBB are "too exorbitant."

The complaint charges that the station demanded $148.48 per 15 minutes for transmitting the messages through one station and $1,480.48 for "so-called chain transmission," all to the great damage of the complainant. It also charges that the National Broadcasting company has failed to furnish facilities. The commission was advised in a letter from Frederick H. Wood of the firm retained by the National Broadcasting company to conduct its defense, that the radio concern has doubts as to the issue coming under the Interstate Commerce Act.

Doubts Jurisdiction

"My first impression of the complaint is," said Mr. Wood, "that it tends to no issue under the Interstate Commerce Act and that it furthermore fails in many important respects to comply with the rules of practice in that it does not contain a plain statement of the facts involved."

"If further study confirms these impressions, it will be my purpose within the period of extension (30 days within which to file answering brief) to direct the attention of the commission thereto in such manner as may be appropriate. We do not represent the other defendant (Station WGBB), H. H. Carman, proprietor, but I am authorized to join him in the request for an extension, which it seems to me should approach."

privately cover him as the questions presented are common to both defendants and no expedition would result from answer by one without the other.

Extension Is Granted

A 20-day extension of time from Oct. 31, within which to file his brief in answer to the Sta-Shine company's complaint, was sought and received by Mr. Wood. The brief is due Nov. 20. Under the Interstate Commerce Act, the commission is authorized to "regulate the transmission of messages by wire or wireless in interstate commerce."

At the time the act was written, there was no radio broadcasting as such and the act was intended to cover such messages as are sent by Western Union or Postal Telegraph or by wireless stations. It dealt with the transmission of a message from one individual to another, whereas broadcasting is the transmission of intelligence from one individual to anyone who tunes in on the receiving set.

TEACHERS MAY BE RESTRICTED

Action Which Limits Other Occupations Is Deferred

Action on a resolution providing that no teacher, supervisor, administrator or any other employee of the Muscatine independent school district shall engage in any occupation other than that specified in the contract with the school board, was deferred until the next regular meeting when it was introduced before the board of education Wednesday evening by G. Allbee, member of the board, and Henry Van Hettling, superintendent of schools.

The resolution provides that such teachers or other employees of the school district shall not engage in any gainful occupation during their actual term of employment, except in cases where the occupation fills a definite church, civic or school need, and then only with the written consent of either the superintendent of school or board of education.

Bank Deposit Assigned

A resolution was adopted that the deposit claim of the school district against the American Savings bank in the amount of approximately $6,300 be assigned to the treasurer of the state for use in state sinking fund, which provides protection against bank failures.

A motion, presented by Dr. W. J. Norton and seconded by G. Allbee that the board include in its budget for next year, sufficient funds to cover the expense of publishing the summarized financial report during the first week in July of each year was also adopted.

Want Local Auditor

Another motion, asking the state auditor to have a local man deputized for the purpose of making the annual audit of the school books, was adopted.

The reports of Margaret Gail, school nurse, and Charles Kern, truant officer, were read and adopted. The report of Miss Gail shows that no pupils at the Garfield and Grant schools were absent or tardy during the ten weeks of school. The McKinley school reported no absence nor tardiness during six weeks of school.

Fred J. Krell was elected as janitor at the Washington school.

PLOT TO SWINDLE MOVIE ACTORS IS BARED ON COAST

LOS ANGELES — (INS) — A plot to swindle Lupe Velez and other screen stars by forgery of checks on their large and dormant bank accounts was on record here today with the arrest of three men.

Fred L. Deliden, confessed forger, admitted he had plotted with Robert Kohler, 32, an actor, and Al S. Keller, financial adviser to several rich actors and actresses, to rob the stars.

"We organized a million dollar forgery ring," Deliden said. "I forged one check for $150 on the account of Lupe Velez, and others on the accounts of Joe E. Brown, the actor, and Victor Heerman, Paramount movie director. We knew the stars kept lots of money in inactive bank accounts."

Deliden said Keller agreed to furnish copies of the signatures of many wealthy members of the motion picture colony.

Keller and Kohler denied the charges.

FLOOD MOUNTS IN APPANOOSE COUNTY VALLEY

Hundreds of Acres of Corn Ruined by Flood

CENTERVILLE — (Special) — Several acres of unhusked corn in the Chariton river valley in Appanoose county were sent down stream by flood water Wednesday. The water is said to be the highest in two years.

Many secondary roads are inundated and traffic has been halted. Rising water also threatened to cut off train service on the Burlington branch in the vicinity of Dean.

Improvements made on highways No. 3 and 6 three years ago prevented traffic from being halted on the main roads.

Rain over the weekend had sent the river over its banks and the water had started to recede Monday night when more rain swelled the stream again.

Duck hunters reported little luck as high water prevented them from getting in to get the game.

One bill, modeled after an English statute would require every purchaser to be fingerprinted, and every gun sold to be measured according to ballistic science. The purpose of the bill would be to cause Chicago hoodlums greater inconvenience in securing arms than under the present statutes. Another bill would prohibit known gangsters from transporting firearms in automobiles under heavy penalties.

Pure food, pure milk, pure water—in all the things you eat or drink, you want absolute purity.

Purity counts in cigarettes, too

Making cigarettes as pure as they can be made is our business. And it's your business, too—because you smoke them.

All the materials that go into the making of CHESTERFIELD cigarettes are tested again and again by expert research chemists to see that they are absolutely clean and pure. Just like the things you eat or drink.

The tobacco is pure. The right kind—mild, sweet and ripe! Handled throughout by the most modern machinery.

The paper is pure. Clean. White. The best cigarette paper that money can buy.

There is cleanliness in every step of CHESTERFIELD's manufacture. Old-fashioned methods have been discarded, and CHESTERFIELDS are made and packed in modern sanitary factories where even the air is washed, and changed every four-and-one-half minutes.

Every day more men and women are changing to CHESTERFIELD. And changing for good! Four big reasons clinch the choice: Milder—Taste Better—Pure—Satisfy.
